

Volunteer work needed for handicapped

Volunteers are needed to work with and teach handicapped children, according to Karen Hahne, director of Kids On The Move.

Kids On The Move is a preschool for handicapped children who range in age from birth to age five. The primary aim of the program is to help the handicapped children become ready to enter regular school.

Teachers and volunteers work one-on-one with the children to teach them basic body functions including all their motor skills, self-help skills, and personal and social needs. Each child is given his or her own individual goal to work toward.

"The more we can get one-on-one with the children, the more efficient and effective we are," said Kathie Ashton, a preschool teacher at Kids On The Move.

Several types of teaching aids have proven effective in assisting these children, such as puppets, creative toys, games and pictures. Volunteers help make the teaching aids and the visual aids in addition to working with the children.

Volunteers can either work directly with the children to help them achieve their individual goals, or help the full-time teachers. Volunteers need only commit to a regular time they will be available to help. Training is provided by Kids On The Move.

"We have the cutest kids on earth here," said Hahne. "Most volunteers get hooked on our program when they see the progress the children make" said Hahne.

If you are interested in giving time to Kids On The Move or any other volunteer opportunity call the United Way Volunteer Center at
